YOU CAN'T PLEASE EVERYONE

(From Aesop's Fables: The Man, the Buy and the Donkey)

A man and his son were once going with their donkey to market. As they were walking along by its side, a countryman passed them as said, "You fool, what is a donkey for but to ride upon?"

So the man put the boy on the donkey and they went on their way. But soon they passed a group of men, one of who said, "See that lazy youngster, he lets his father walk while he rides."

So the man ordered his boy to get off, and got on himself. But they hadn't gone far when they passed two women, one of whom said to the other, "Shame on that lazy lout, to let his poor little son trudge along."

Well the man didn't know what to do, but he took his boy up before him on the donkey. By this time they had come to town and the passersby began to jeer and point at them. The man stopped and asked what they were scoffing at. The men said, "Aren't you ashamed of yourself for overloading that poor donkey of yours— you and your hulking son?"

The man and the boy got off and tried to think of what to do. They thought and they thought, till at last they cut down a pole and tied the donkey's feet to it and raised the pole and the donkey to their shoulders. They went along amid laughter of all who met them till they came to Market Bridge, when the donkey, getting one of his feet loose, kicked out and caused the boy to drop his end of the pole. In the struggle the donkey fell over the bridge, and his fore-feet being tied together, he was drowned.

"That will teach you, " said an old man who had followed them:

"Please all, and you please none."

(One of my all-time favorites! - Tim)
