Number 6

For a few weeks, our Sunday morning lessons will focus around certain powerful verses in God's Word. Understand that all of God's Word is powerful. Hebrews 4 tells us that "the Word of God is alive and active". And 2 Timothy reminds us that "all scripture is God-breathed". But there are certain verses that just seem to have a special power to them.

And can there be a more powerful verse in the Bible than at the very start. Genesis 1:1 says, "In the beginning, God created the heavens and the earth." This simple statement is awesome on so many levels. It proclaims the eternity of God. God was before the beginning. This is a hard concept for us (at least me) to grasp. I can sorta relate to eternity in the future. But eternity in the past? No beginning. Always has been? Mind blowing.

This verse also speaks to the incredible power of God. Elohim (the God who creates) creates the universe from nothing. Speaking it into existence. We have learned that the Bible was never intended to be a science textbook. God does not explain the how of all He does. Probably because we could never comprehend it. But the existence of an eternal and all-powerful God explains what scientists cannot. Not only does creation show the power of God, but the design of God as well. Surely no honest thinking person can say with any confidence that all of this "just happened".

No it did not. "In the beginning God" is far superior to theory man can devise.
