“New Beginnings”

Another year has passed. 2018 is here. Wow, that was fast! The new year always offers us the opportunity to look back on the old year and look ahead to the new. A time for reflection and recommitment and refocus. A time for new beginnings. God is all about new beginnings. As the children of Israel crossed over Jordan and entered the promised land, God had them renew their covenant with them. Not for His sake, but for theirs.

As we, both individually and as a church family, look toward 2018, it would do us good to renew our covenant with Him as well. Now is an opportune time to renew our commitment to worship and Bible study and service and evangelism and spiritual growth. There is an old saying that says, “If you aren’t growing, you are dying”. That is especially true in our spiritual lives. We must never become complacent or content in our relationship with God. Even the apostle Paul said the he forgot what was behind and pressed on. The church at Laodicea was warned that they had become lukewarm.

This congregation has a storied history of service to the community, spreading the Gospel here and around the world, a strong commitment to teaching and encouraging others. That’s good. But that is history. What about the present and future? We have very loving, caring, talented and committed people here. Our present and future is bright. Our potential is enormous. Our expectations should be high, because I know God’s are. There is much work to be done.

I look forward to 2018 with all its challenges and opportunities. We can accomplish so much if we continue to commit ourselves to His service and seek to show His glory in all we do. I challenge each of us, especially myself, to recommit rededicate and reenergize ourselves to the tasks at hand. I pray God’s richest blessings on each of us as individuals and as a church family for the upcoming year. Thank God for the blessing of new beginnings.

- Tim

PRAYING FOR THE SICK

Nancy Bowers was dismissed from the hospital last Friday. She is improving at home. Please continue your prayers for Emma Martin. She has finished with her radiation treatments. Also, continue prayers for Carla Barnes. Roy Ethridge has been dismissed from the hospital and is under home health. He is the father of our Terry Lee and Darrell Ethridge.
